

From: Aglialoro, John
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 10:51pm
Subject: The U.S. Government and Microsoft Corporation

The stunning achievement of Microsoft as a noble enterprise is its great gift to the general public.....the access to useful and inexpensive information. This voluntary transaction by a willing consumer exchanging a pittance of cost for the value received should result in a chorus of support by U. S. officials. The high profits EARNED by Microsoft which produce huge government income and high employment {that creates more productivity and further government tax income by those gainfully employed} should guarantee unwavering support for the existence, growth, and continuance of Microsoft as a standard of awe and respect.

And yet, unconscionably, competitors of less sterner stuff in alliance with pale political will and bureaucratic force, characterize an angel of deliverance as its opposite.....FOR SHAME !! There must be agents of reason within the corridors of government who could reverse the nonsense and give due reverence to the man and his company and therefore give reverence to the sacred philosophy our blessed nation was founded upon.

John

Aglialoro, CEO

Cybex International

john_aglialoro@umholdings.com